Venture capital firm Legendary Ventures has joined Girl Scouts of the USA's corporate partnership program. The program provides girls with the opportunity to reach their full potential via mentorship with public and private institutions. In partnership with GSUSA, organizations can sponsor a year of Girl Scout memberships to provide girls with critical skills to become the leaders of tomorrow. Legendary Ventures' participation will provide 200 Girl Scout membership scholarships to girls in low-income families.

"This year, we've seen families forced to make tough decisions about their daughters' out-of-school activities because of income loss. We are so grateful that Legendary Ventures is working with us to help girls reach their full potential," said Jenn Hollern GSUSA Deputy Chief Customer Officer.

"Today, girls need Girl Scouting more than ever. We are thrilled to participate in a program that allows girls to gain the entrepreneurial skills necessary to succeed in the workplace," said Jayson Kim, General Partner of Legendary Ventures.
